A. COMPRENSIÓN LECTORA. (4 puntos)Rallies on Guns

Hundreds of thousands of students joined the pro-gun control March for Our Lives rallies across the US in one of the largest expressions of popular opposition in the modern era. Events have been taking place at more than 800 locations around the world –including London, Sydney, Tokyo, Mumbai, plus hundreds of places in the US.

In Washington, as the number of young, diverse and impassioned protesters went along Pennsylvania Avenue, many carried signs reading “We are the change”, “No more silence” or “Arms are for... Hugging!” Organizers said they hoped their protest would be one of the biggest in the capital since the Vietnam era, and it was clear they had been careful to create a diverse, inclusive group of speakers. Along with survivors from the attack in Parkland, Florida, who have stimulated the new push for gun reform, speakers included young victims of gun violence from around America. They sang, they chanted, and they challenged their parents’ generation to be effective in eliminating gun violence from society.

Shortly before the end of the event, Emma Gonzalez, the survivor to Parkland shooting, who had been a leading voice immediately after the attack on her school, was in the stage for 6 minutes and 20 seconds, much of that in silence. She said it was the amount of time it took a school shooter to kill 17 people. These people would never do anything else because of guns.
